

Table of Contents Volume 63 . . . 1996

NUMBER ONE—SPRING

Nationalism and Modernity	Liah Greenfeld	3
The Reawakening of European Nationalisms	Jacques Rupnik	41
Nationalism, Postsocialism, and Space in Eastern Europe	Katherine Verdery	77
How Nationalisms Spread: Eastern Europe Adrift the Tides and Cycles of Nationalist Contention	Mark R. Beissinger	97
Ethnarchy and Ethno-Anarchism	G.M. Tamás	147
Beyond the Nation State	János Kis	191
The Changing Facets of Hungarian Nationalism	György Csepeli and Antal Örkeny	247

NUMBER TWO—SUMMER

Introduction	Timothy Garton Ash	287
The Meanings of 1989	Jeffrey C. Isaac	291
Civil Society Endangered	Daniel Nelson	345
The World They Have Lost: An Assessment of Change in Eastern Europe	Miguel Centeno and Tania Rands	369
The Russian Transition in Comparative and Russian Perspective	Archie Brown	403

The "Cream of the Crop" in an Unsettled Time: Reflections on the Intelligentsia in Post-Soviet Russia	Liah Greenfeld	417
Revolutionary Spectacle and Peaceful Transition	Aleksander Smolar	439
Beyond Gains and Losses: In Search of "Winning Losers"	Andrzej Rychard	465
Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome in Social Science in Eastern Europe: The Colonization of East European Social Science	György Csepeli, Antal Örkény and Kim Lane Scheppele	487
Did the Losers Win? An Analysis of Electoral Behavior in Hungary in 1994	András Kovács	511
What Did We Lose After 1989?	Jiřina Šiklová	531
Bulgaria: Could We Regain What We Have Already Lost?	Rumyana Kolarova	543
Post-Totalitarian Pathology: Notes on Romania, Six Years After December 1989	Andrei Pleșu	559
Friendly Prodding and Other Sources of Change in Cuba	Mauricio Font	573

NUMBER THREE—FALL

Truth, Politics and Self-Deception	Bernard Williams	603
Professional Liars	Alan Ryan	619
The Shadow of a Lie: Poetry, Lying and the Truth of Fictions	John Hollander	643
Sex, Lies and Tall Tales	Wendy Doniger	663
Holding Up the Mirror: Deception as Revelation in the Theater	Thomas R. Whitaker	701

On Making a Virtue of the Telling of Lies: Deception as a Marker of Children's Developing Conceptions of Mental Life	Michael J. Chandler and Jamie Afifi	731
Babies' Cries: Who's Listening, Who's Being Fooled?	Nicholas S. Thompson, Carolyn Olson, and Brian Dessureau	763
On the Psychology and Self-Deception	David Shapiro	785
Why Don't We Catch Liars?	Paul Ekman	801
The Psychology of Human Deception	Robert W. Mitchell	819
The Historical Significance of Lying and Dissimulation	Perez Zagorin	863
Some Questions About Truthfulness and Lying	Mary Mothersill	913
My Grandfather's Walking Stick, Or The Pink Lie	Lore Segal	931

NUMBER FOUR—WINTER

Paying the Bill for Goulash Communism: Hungarian Development and Macro Stabilization in a Political-Economy Perspective	János Kornai	943
Pragmatism, Social Identity, Patriotism, and Self-Criticism	Alan Ryan	1041
Language, Culture, and National Identity	Eric Hobsbawm	1065
On Torture, or Cruel, Inhuman, and Degrading Treatment	Talal Asad	1081

The Essential "Other" and the Jew: From Antisemitism to Genocide

Henri Zukier

1110

Repertoires of Contention in Post- Communist Protest
Cultures: An East Central
European Comparative Survey

Máté Szabó

1155

Of Secrecy and the Commonplace: Witchcraft and
Power in Soweto

Adam Ashforth

1183

